“TIS THE SEASON” .

“Kickoff”.

The kick off party for this year's MKV Shuffleboard tournament began at 5PM yesterday with a vast assortment of goodies being set up on an enormous buffet table by all the participants. The delectable pu pu's and drinks were enjoyed by all until we were interrupted by a few announcements by our event coordinator, Charley Mayrs. He heartily thanked past volunteers and officials. He then tried to stop the party again when he announced the partner pairings which had been prearranged by a sinister secret hui.

Then, the powerful chairman once again quieted the crowd, and said there would be a drawing for six door prizes, 3 for male contestants and 3 for females. Parker returned the door prize because he couldn't believe he finally won one. The drawings were honestly made by Pinky Stolz and Hy Siegel and then read out loud by Scotty Smith who just called out any name he could think of, because there wasn't enough light for him to read the actual names drawn. Mary Lou turned her door prize in too. Non paying participants were castigated by the host and were embarrassed by having their names called out loud. But, in his ultimate wisdom, he allowed them to participate. A dangerous precedent. Next year, no one will pay!

Big moo moo noise by Mary Mayrs' conch ended the festivities. Let the games begin!

It was announced that some people are late paying their one dollar dues. (This reporter won't mention names—I don't want to embarrass Sherry or Elaine).
